The Human Magnet Syndrome: Why We Love People Who Hurt Us

Synopsis

Since the dawn of civilization, men and women have been magnetically and irresistibly drawn together into romantic relationships, not so much by what they see, feel and think, but more by invisible forces. When individuals with healthy emotional backgrounds meet, the irresistible love force creates a sustainable, reciprocal and stable relationship. Codependents and emotional manipulators are similarly enveloped in a seductive dreamlike state; however, it will later unfold into a painful seesaw of love, pain, hope and disappointment. The soul mate of the codependent's dreams will become the emotional manipulator of their nightmares. Readers of the Human Magnet Syndrome will better understand why they, despite their dreams for true love, find themselves hopelessly and painfully in love with partners who hurt them. This book will guide and inspire both the layman and the professional.

Customer Reviews

Ross Rosenberg's important work, The Human Magnet Syndrome: Why We Love People Who Hurt Us, challenges us to continue looking at relationship dynamics to see how our experiences affected us and will continue to affect others. Join this forward-looking movement by reading a book that draws on the discoveries of the past, but adds more wisdom combined with effective answers. It's both the next step in evolution and a revelation. I recommend The Human Magnet Syndrome to those who work in social services, education, chemical dependency or the counseling fields and to the people they touch. It's time to wake up and this brilliant book sounds the alarm we need.

--Melody Beattie, author of 18 books, including best-selling Codependent No More and Language of Letting Go Many couples have a give and take relationship. The takers will not read this book. The givers need to. For those who give too much, there is freedom in these pages. Clarity begins here. Learn why you are constantly frustrated no matter how much you give to your partner. Get this book and give yourself a gift. --Peter Pearson, Ph.D., co-founder of The Couples Institute Born in the cauldron of personal experience of suffering and healing and honed through years of professional experience, this book will help anyone understand the attractors of love and consequent suffering. I recommend it to couples who are mystified by the depth and repetition of their pain and joy and to therapists whose destiny is to help them.--Harville Hendrix, Ph.D., co-author with Helen LaKelly Hunt of Making Marriage Simple: Transform the Relationship you Have Into the Relationship you Want Rosenberg offers a much needed, accessible explanation about how love, sex and relationships can go awry - and what each of us can do to become more empowered and engaged in our lifelong process of building community and family.--Robert Weiss, LCSW, CSAT-S, author, psychotherapist, educator, sex and relationship disorders expert Refreshingly intuitive and innovative, Rosenberg unravels the mystery of self-sabotaging relationship patterns. A must read. --Randi Kreger, co-author of the best-selling Stop Walking on Eggshells and Psychology Today blogger

Ross Rosenberg is the owner of Clinical Care Consultants, a Chicago area counseling center, and SelfLove Recovery Institute, a training/seminar and professional certification company. He has been a psychotherapist for almost 30 years and is considered an international expert on narcissism, codependency, trauma and sex addiction. His YouTube channel, which has garnered 5.5 million views/51K subscribers (as of 4/9/17), has resulted in his work receiving global recognition. Ross's "The Human Magnet Syndrome: Why We Love People Who Hurt You," has sold 40,000 copies and is considered a staple in most codependency treatment and recovery circles. He is also an international renown seminar leader, who presented in 27 of the 50 USA States and Amsterdam and London. He's been regularly featured on national TV and radio; and blogs/writes for prominent online publications. Ross's Codependency Cure work reformulates, redefines, and ultimately renames "codependency" to "Self-Love Deficit Disorder." Other original theories/concepts, like the Continuum of Self Theory, The Ten Stage SLDD Recovery Model, "The Observe Don't Absorb Technique," and many others, have reshaped what we know about codependency, codependency recovery, narcissism, dysfunctional relationships, and narcissistic abuse.

Oh my... this book was amazing!! Thank you Ross Rosenberg!!! I am a student finishing up my AA degree in human services w/ an emphasis on certification for Chemical Dependency Professional... I WAS going to work as a substance abuse counselor however, the past two years, after my own awakening in my codependent ways of being, I began working a recovery program in Al-anon. I read everything I could get my hands on with regards to this topic and devoured all my college level text books on the subject of addiction ... because the narcissistic addict was the thorn in my flesh...I began to understand and fully understand after reading this book, how we attract the opposite of what we are... I was a serious codependent. I never realized I learned to HATE who I was.. to avoid an abusive, rage-a-holic father, I employed roles and ways of being to anticipate what was coming so I could avoid being beaten... It never worked but I learned how to read people and please them to avoid being abandoned rejected and orphaned ...I have had a few significant relationships in my life. All were with narcissist once using addicts and a few in active addiction. I was unable to see the pattern or see anything in me that was bringing them into my life.. just wasn't the time. Two years ago, it became time to wake up and change...Today, this book has helped me understand the continuum of how and who attracts who... a -5 codependent will attract a +5 narcissistic personality, BPD, or addict narcissist ... addicts are always narcissistic.. they literally have a love relationship with their drug of choice and USE people ... there are 3 stages to addiction: early, middle and late stage and just going sober doesn't change the narcissist personality they have created in the disease; WHICH is why it is imperative for them to work an HONEST recovery program with a sponsor in some type of 12 step program. It is a guide to renewing their distorted, diseased, brain and learn to become awake, aware and actively recovering and changing. This book discusses everything necessary so you will learn about yourself and your patterns as a codependent. Unfortunately, as stated in this book, most narcissistic types will NOT be helped because they can't ever see that they have done anything wrong.. their programming is such that they are perfect, grandiose, without fault nor flaw... they can't even begin to dig down deep in to the cesspool of their past upbringing to address the deep trauma and abuse they encountered at some point in their development. This is what drives them to self-medicate, or just live the illusion that they are perfect and everyone should bow down worship and adore them "god complex" types. I completed this book in one sitting .. it just spoke to exactly what I needed to read at the moment.. filling in so much information to all that I have read over the past 2-4 years when I was 'dabbling' in considering if I was in need of help until I realized I WAS definitely in need of help. Today I believe through the program of Al-anon and working with a sponsor as well as reading and studying such books as this,

I have entered in to a level of healing that I could not have entered in to any other way.. I came to see that I needed to be restored to sanity because I was INSANE as a result of the narcissistic addicts I had allowed into my life... the only way to get better was to get away from them, isolate myself for a season and put the focus totally on me... nothing a true codependent does with out dis-ease...I began loving myself. Accepting myself and all that has happened and currently happens.. I live in acceptance and I forgave and rapidly forgive myself daily. Perfection and control are both illusions and I live genuine and authentic these days. I have good healthy boundaries in place and have eradicated close ties with anyone in active addiction or not working an honest recovery.This book is MUST reading MUST MUST MUST .. if you are a codependent and if you happen to be that rare addict narcissist who wants to truly find peace and serenity in a recovery lifestyle. I think the book said that many addicts move out of the narcissistic +5 when they stop drinking and work recovery ...All in all, I will and have already recommended this book to people in class and working their own recovery program. Thank you Ross Rosenberg for taking of your time to put this down on paper and put it in print! I am grateful to infinity and beyond! NOW I have a definite understanding of why I attracted who I did .. and why I am no longer attracting unhealthy addict types... SO happy to know this!!

I have spent 30 years of my life choosing the wrong men. I happened to come across an article by the author online, and decided to read the book. I read it in one sitting, today, after kicking another narcissistic man out of my house yesterday. It's too soon to say "this book has changed my life"... but it will. I have never understood what is wrong with me or why I gravitate to selfish, arrogant men, and have spent my entire life in denial of an extremely challenging childhood. However miraculously, to see my entire life loosely summarized in a book by someone I don't even know, has spurred an incredible sense of determination to change. After months in therapy whining about my relationship, thinking I could change things while sticking around, I am convinced it is time to take a break from dating and try to reorient myself in the hopes of ending up in a relationship based on **mutual** love and consideration -- something I have never had before. If you are even considering the possibility that you are in a codependent situation, buy this book. Read it in the bathroom, or shower, or in a grocery store parking lot if you're dating someone who would be suspicious. Just do it. It's a surprisingly affordable "holy crap" moment you will probably not regret.

"Every therapist should read this book to better serve their clients!"Not one of the numerous books that I have read on this topic has given me the "Aha" moments that Ross Rosenberg's book has.

Instead of making me feel angry at "the other person" all of the time, it puts focus on why WE have automatically allowed and drawn "takers/users" into our lives and why.....where it originated. It shows us our part in the toxic dance with the emotional manipulator. It is done with a unique scale which is a new and innovative perspective. The author was so generous to share his own life experience with us which is the most valuable understanding one can share. I felt as though I was reading about myself and that I am not alone or a victim but a survivor. The author gently pushes us into self awareness and understanding of both emotional manipulation and co-dependency and how that creates "The Human Magnet Syndrome". He takes us back to childhood where it all started and lifts the veil off of our perception of how our parents really treated us. It forces us to look inside with honesty and gentleness for the truth about why we have drawn in mates, friends and family that disregard our boundaries. They take more than they give. Being an only child and being an extension of my mother taught me how to anticipate every situation before it happened in order to make her life easier. I never knew my bio father but my mom married a step dad (they are divorced now) when I was six, even though I disliked him very much. Dr. Rosenberg's book has finally helped me see that my own mother was an emotional manipulator and the above is in fact true. I married a diagnosed covert narcissist and stayed in that relationship for 27 years. Thank you Ross Rosenberg for making me the captain of my own ship for the first time in my life! Please do yourself a favor and pick up a copy of this book today! Not only will you understand everything but you will realize that for the first time in your life you can actually survive, thrive, heal and have healthy relationships in the future.
