Facing West: A Forever Wilde Novel

Synopsis

The first book in a new series by Lucy Lennox! Nico: I left my family and tiny Texas hometown fifteen years ago to escape small-town gossips and to give my mom and sister the chance at a better life. But when a phone call from an attorney back home informs me that my sister passed away, leaving me custody of her newborn baby, I'm shocked out of the steady life I've built for myself running a tattoo shop in San Francisco. The thing is: I don't do babies. And I don't do small towns. Or commitment. And I especially don't do family. My plan is to go back to Hobie just long enough to sign adoption papers, giving my niece the kind of stable, loving family I could never provide. But the moment I meet my niece in the arms of Weston Wilde, my sister's best friend and the town's handsome doctor, my plans begin to change. Because suddenly, I see a different future. One with the very thing I thought I never deserved: a family. If only I can convince West that I'm not the same good-for-nothing kid ready to bolt when things get tough. Weston: There's one thing I know for sure about Nico Salerno: he was a good-for-nothing as a kid and judging by the purple-haired, tattooed punk who shows up at his sister's funeral, he hasn't changed. There's no way I'm letting him take custody of my best friend's baby. But the more time I spend around him, the more I realize that his rough exterior is just a shell and that beneath all the tattoos is a scared, insecure man searching for a place to belong. And pretty soon I know exactly where he belongs: in my bed and by my side. The problem is, he abandoned his family once before, how do I know that if we become a family he won't do it again? Facing West is the first in the new Forever Wilde series about the huge Wilde family from Hobie, Texas, whose patriarchs aren't above a little meddling if that's what it takes to help their grandkids find true love.

Customer Reviews

Two men who grew up in the same town, acquaintances but not friends by any means. Fifteen year old Nico leaves town to give his mom and sister a better life, thinking it was the best thing to do at the time. If he stayed, their lives would never get better. He runs to San Francisco thinking it was *the* place for gay men/boys. Sadly he found out quickly, harshly, this isn't truth by any means. Weston comes from a huge family full of siblings, loving parents, Grandparents and extended family. Every dream he had ever wanted has come true, except finding a man in his tiny town in Texas. Fast forward fifteen years. Sadly Nico gets a call saying his sister has died and left him as sole custodian of her baby girl. Nico has never really been much for children and is ready to move forward, offering her up for adoption. In a cruel twist of fate, his sister has named Weston as the biological father before giving Nico guardianship if she passes, plus her bakery and house she worked so hard for. No one knows why she has done this. Nico decides it's best to leave West to sign Pippa over for adoption to the "town's golden couple" (there is a huge twist there too!!) and takes his life back to his tattoo shop in San Fran. Time will only tell how this ends up. Scared, Nico finds himself in love, but feeling he'll never be enough for West. He left to give his mother and sister a better life, it's what he needs to do for West and Pippa as well. West sees past Nico's walls and does his best to show not only does he love Nico, but Nico does have a huge, loving, extended family, if he truly wants it. This book ties into characters from the Made Marian books and a few pop over into this story as well.

Lucy Lennox has done it again with the debut book in her new series. I've been hoping for Nico to get some love ever since we were first introduced to him in the Made Marion books. His journey toward love and acceptance certainly doesn't disappoint. West is the perfect balance of family, love, and home that Nico desperately needs. Take their past, mix it with their present chemistry, add in a couple of crazy grandpas and a sweet, chubby cheeked baby, and you have a recipe for one amazing story. Lucy is a one-click author for me, and I can't wait to see what she comes up with next.

I had always been curious about Nico since he first showed up in Griffen's story. The Wilde family is a pure delight. Finding out Nico's backstory was sad and painful but West made him finally feel worthy of love. If you loved the Marian series, read Facing West and and prepare to get hooked.

This is a great start to a new series. Nico was introduced in the Made Marian series and I was really hoping he would get his own book. This was a really well told story and the chemistry of Nico and West was off the charts hot! I am super excited for book 2!!!

This was a great book, with a promise of more. The characters were perfect, they say opposites attract, in this case this Author knew what She was talking about. Definitely a must read, couldn't put it down. Many thanks,  Honey Bee

I loved reading about Nico and why he left home and never went back. The vibe between Nico & West was just unbelievable. I was between tears, laughter & rooting for the Nico to push through his built up wall. What a great series

What a great start to this series. Loved the Made Marian series and this seems to be the start of something great. I hope we get to learn more of Doc and Grandpa's story. Loved the interactions with West and Nico.

Not sure what happened to my review but trying again. Love getting Nico's story, seeing what all he went through had me crying and hubby asking why! I was really worried about liking West since he was such a jerk but he won me over. It was good to see some of the Marian crew. Hope to see more of Grandpa and Doc and hopefully see their story.
