Julian Stafford, Duke of Windemere, lost his only son in a duel - a duel partly caused by his dead wife. His son's betrothed vanished, and Julian has nothing but his dead wife's debts left. Widow, Lady Sylvia Edgeworth, Dowager Viscountess Pendholm, wants something to do, now her children are married. She starts a charitable project. Dream of a Duke In the style of Charlotte Brontë's Jane Eyre, Ms. Thorne tries a more gothic style Regency Romance in Dream of a Duke. Alexandra Burton, now a governess, goes back to her childhood home to care for the son of a Duke, who once was her friend. Her station makes it impossible for her to be his wife. She refuses to be his mistress. Nothing could bring people of such different classes together, except the Duke's son by a different mother.

A Perfect Match Miss Elizabeth Devereux needs a wealthy husband, for her family to survive. Visiting the daughters of the Earl of Cambury, she hopes to meet a suitable man. Her friends want her to marry their brother as she is not so sure. Mr Alastair Chamberlain has newly come into wealth, but his inheritance is conditional on him marrying soon. Visiting Cambury he meets Elizabeth, and the attraction is mutual. Can they trust their emotions? Are they each simply seeing the other as a solution to a problem? Can they overcome the jealousy and plotting of her friends? Will they eventually find true love?

The Duke's Matchless Maidservant A Maid, a Manager, a Duchess's secrets, an unexpected heritage, a love fulfilled. Colin Brown is the handsome property manager of the Weston estate. Lovely Leah Hoskins has just been hired as the Duchess's lady's maid. Then, through a chance encounter, she meets the Duke of Granger. What starts out as loathing, soon turns into something else. But can a dashing rogue really turn into a handsome prince? Cecilia Hatch meets the Duke of Northcastle by chance, in a thunderstorm, and offers him some advice about his intended betrothal. Soon, interfering with his plan to marry has undesirable results. Tangled in Lady Charlotte's web of lies and deceit, Cecilia is at a loss - who to believe? Is the Duke really a cad as Lady Charlotte says, or can Cecilia believe his innocence? Will Cecilia's life be forever ruined or will she finally discover the love her heart yearns for?

Customer Reviews

I think these are wonderful stories you don't want to miss. If you like Regency romance, especially clean stories with no sex, these are for you. I have read other books by some of these authors, who are among my favorites, and now I've found more authors whose books I want to read. Each story is different because the characters are different, but the one thing they have in common is an HEA ending. "Finding the Duke's Heir," "His Majesty's Hounds" series, was one of my favorites. You will find Earls and Dukes, ladies of the ton, and women of the lower classes. Regardless of their social status, each couple finds the right person for them. After each story, you can also read the first few chapters of another book by that same author. I would recommend this collection of Regency novellas to everyone.

Love's Harvest: A Regency Romance Harvest Collection is a squeaky clean set of Regency novellas. As with any set of books from multiple authors, I liked some better than the others. Each story is a complete, clean and stand-alone story with a HEA. The following is a list of the seven books, with a brief review and my star rating for each.

- 1) Finding the Duke's Heir by Arietta Richmond (3 stars) is a slightly sad tale. The writing is detailed, but the pace is slowed by redundant musings. I like that the real HEA love interest is really between the middle aged Sylvia and Julian.
- 2) The Earl's Harvest Dilemma by Catherine Windsor (4 stars) was a good story that was well written. I liked both Sophia and Hugh as they worked together to overcome the obstacles standing in their way. The story is about courage, character and tenacity.
- 3) Dream of a Duke by Isabella Thorne (5 stars) is a story of childhood friends who take separate paths, only to find each other again years later. I liked Alexandra and felt sorry for Edmund. This well written and detailed story is a bit sad, but with a HEA.
- 4) A Perfect Match by Kelly Anne Bruce (3 stars) stars Elizabeth and Alastair, who each need to marry, but for different reasons. The writing was good, but I just could not connect with the characters.
- 5) The Duke's Matchless Maidservant by Alyce Healey (5 stars) is an interesting and enjoyable story featuring Leah and Colin. It's well written with great characters and a twist at the end.
- 6) Tempted by a Duke by Regina Darcy (3 stars) is a simple and predictable story that seemed written for younger readers. I liked Josephine from the start, but Hamilton was a bit annoying until his character morphed into a nicer person.
- 7) The Duke's Secret Love by Eleanor St. Claire (3 stars) is sweet, improbable and but also a bit silly. The writing is okay, but I never really connected with either Rowley or Celcilia. I did like Celcilia's headstrong sister Margaret. She made me smile.

I am all in favour of a romanticised view of Regency England, I don't want to read about the uncleanliness, the lice, disease and rotting teeth etc that abounded but I do wish that authors would abide by the strict hierarchy of status and class with regard to marriage. In this boxset, we have no less than 5 marriages to those of the serving or merchant class. The inequality would probably have led to social ostracism and an unhappy life.

Finding the Duke's Heir - Arietta Richmond 4.5*A sweet and charming tale involving late found love, charity and missing persons. Readers should note that if they have not read the previous books in this series, that there are a lot of characters to keep straight in your head but that it can be read as a standalone.

The Earl's Harvest Dilemma - Catherine Windsor 5*Lovely romance ensuing from an arranged marriage. Lady Sophia's stepfather is deeply in debt and decides to sell her to an unpleasant Duke in exchange for restoration of his fortune. Sophia overhears his plans and flees to her aunt for aid, what she doesn't expect is her aunt to rush her into betrothal with another man.

Dream of a Duke - Isabella Thorne 4*Alexandra Burton, the daughter of a servant and Edmund, son of a Duke were childhood friends, separated before Edmund's twelfth birthday. Now they meet again; Edmund is a widower whilst Alexandra is governess to his son. Can they be friends again? Something more? Or, will they live separate lonely lives due to Society's expectations?

A Perfect Match - Kelly Anne Bruce 2*The historical and cultural inaccuracies were distracting and annoying and spoilt the story. I feel no inclination to try any further 'Regency' stories by this author.

The Duke's Matchless Maidservant - Alyce Healey 3*Need a healthy suspension of disbelief with this story particularly the informality between ladies maid Leah, who is supposed to be a paragon and her mistress' daughter (sitting without permission, gossiping/asking questions, talking about her by her christian name etc).

Tempted by a Duke - Regina Darcy 4*This romance is between the daughter of an impoverished Baron and a Duke and I enjoyed how she snubbed him for his treatment of her. Miss Josephine Dudley is horse mad, to the extent that she behaves inappropriately- riding astride, going about unchaperoned etc which is how she comes to be accosted by the Duke, who doesn't believe, with her forward ways and manners, that she can be an innocent. An enjoyable story. Whilst the Duke could have done far better for himself in the marriage stakes, for Josephine this is a splendid match, and this romance is far less unequal than others in this boxset. It should however be noted that the duties of a Duchess will leave her little time to spend in the stables!

The Duke's Secret Love - Eleanor St Clair 3*Cecilia the daughter of a tenant farmer gives advice to a Duke about affairs of the heart and finds herself attracted to the gentleman but when she meets the lady whom he was supposed to marry, she believes she has been deceived in his nature. Another story where you have to suspend disbelief.

Editing errors (Lady Charlotte has three different fathers) have been forwarded to the author. After each full length novella, is a preview (approx 2 chapters) of another book by the author, which you will need to purchase in order to finish the story. Some readers may find this annoying however, I bookmarked the beginning of each new novella and just skipped the previews. I received a complimentary copy of this box set from one of the authors. I was not compensated for my review, and I was not required to write a positive review. The opinion expressed here is my own.

I downloaded the pdf of this book because two of favorite authors are included and it has also allowed me to discover some new authors. I am leaving my favorites for last Arietta Richmond and Isabella Thorne so still have some reading to look forward to. One of the new authors for me was Eleanor St Clair and I find that I want to read more of her work. I loved Sarah, the wager was good and she left a good hook on this preview. Her other story was just as enjoyable to read the main character was Cecilla a strong female who helps in a roundabout way someone she cares for. This is a well-written story that has an interesting twist to it. I am currently reading Regina Darcy book enjoying it so far and have not had but a quick skim of Ayce Healey work. Catherine Windsor and Kelly Ann Bruce books I have read and enjoyed but like the other two, I mention they are new to me. This is a good collection. The authors are pretty much on the same level of excellence so it is well worth getting. Enjoy!
