reSchool-Grade 1-Biscuit the puppy is adorable and mischievous and would rather roll in the mud with his puppy friend, Puddles, than be bathed by his young owner. His owner eventually manages to get him into the bath, but not before she ends up getting one herself. Narrator Andrea Kessler provides a fun retelling of the story by Alyssa Satin Capucilli (HarperCollins, 1998). Playful background music supplements the telling nicely. One side of the tape has page-turn signals, while on side two the story is told uninterrupted. Although this title is classified as a "preschool reader" by the publisher, this age group will have trouble tackling words such as "friend," "sprinkler," and "Biscuit" on their own. However, youngsters will appreciate and enjoy the silliness of the story. Plenty of repetitive text makes this a good choice for beginning readers. A useful addition to school and public libraries. Shauna Yusko, King County Library System, Bellevue, WA Copyright 2002

Gr.1. The text is brief, and the illustrations have an old-fashioned kind of sweetness in this simple tale depicting the hassles involved in getting a mischievous little dog, Biscuit, into a bath. Biscuit's owner eventually manages the job, but not without Biscuit exacting a predictably comical revenge. The vocabulary is quite basic--see, bath, roll, etc.--and there's plenty of repetition in the text to allow for reading practice. Even if there isn't much that's memorable about the story, new readers will still come away feeling they've had a successful reading experience. These books make it easy for parents to find leveled books for their child. There is a circle at the top of each book indicating the level of the book with a number and color. Pre-Primer books are good for parents to read to their toddlers up through kindergarten and beyond where kids become proficient enough to read it to mom and dad. When your child can read and understand the PP level on their own, a parent needs to begin purchasing level 1/first grade level books to read to their child. Following suite, when the child can read and understand level one books on their own, parents progressively move to the next level. Don't put away the books they have mastered...put them in your home library so they can choose it to read again. The more the times a kiddo reads a book, the better they understand and this is what promotes reading! Finally, the books are fun to read, not boring. A majority of the stories come from award winning children's book authors and illustrators.

This is a good reader for K/1st grades. Biscuit is a beloved character and avoiding a bath is something kids can relate to. The story is repetitive which is great for learning and building confidence.

We already have a Biscuit puppet and the first book of the series, so I purchased more of the books. They are sweet and well-illustrated, but not very compelling stories. Once we read through them my three-year-old granddaughter lost interest. I contrast this to the Frog and Toad stories which we have read over and over and over again and discussed together. She is not reading the books herself, but is being read too. She likes three or four story times a day, but these books don't have a lot to them.

Really short little story, perfect for beginning readers. Lots of repetition to give kids the encouragement they need to keep reading and helps them learn sight words. Only a little longer than your average board book for an infant or toddler. The story is cute and simple for a child to follow and understand.

Good book for young children but not worth $4.00 for Kindle- my child liked it but wants another story immediately after we finish.

Delightful book

All Biscuit books are a hit with my grand kids! The pictures are great and the words are fun with a little challenge. Perfect for the K kid who is getting the hang of reading. Also, these are usually on the Accelerated Reader program often used in school.

All the Biscuit books are simple to read and the perfect way to help your new reader gain interest. It can also help with a pesky toddler who is just not interested in a bath to know that Biscuit seems to like them just fine!
